However, by 1989, Dodge's unfavorable situation was about to change, as they introduced the new diesel engine. Although both Ford and GM offered diesel engines in their full-size pickup trucks for years, the Cummins unit used for Ram trucks was in a different league. With dependable reliability, simple design and plenty of torque, this 5.9 liter straight six was a game changer. Over night ...

The Cummins turbodiesel kept its eminence among diesel pickup truck engines in fuel economy, beating the 1993 Dodge Ram diesel pickups; though it was aided by a lockup torque converter (on automatics), better aerodynamics, and lower rolling-resistance tires. The engine was now too powerful for the automatic transmission, so Dodge artificially restricted power on trucks with automatics.
